FOREWORD

In compiling this brief history of the Mount family, and the genealogical records of the Mount and Flippin families, effort has been made to obtain complete and accurate data. All records herein have been collected over a period of years, and at considerable expense, by personal research by the compiler, and the valuable assistance of his wife, Mrs. Ninn Bobbitt Mount; and by experienced genealogical searchers, from United States Census reports, war and pension records, national and state archives, state Historical Societies, marriage and family records, and a critical analysis of family tradition and the continuity of family names.

This record begins with the origin of the name Mount in France, and the migration of members of the family into England in 1066, and the final entry of the emigrant George Mount into colonial America in 1660, at which time and place this genealogical record begins. Particular reference is made to the Southern Branch of the family, residing in the states of Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, and their descendants which have migrated into other states of the Union.

No effort has been made to trace the record of the female members and their descendants, which include well-known families of New England and the Southern States.

Ample space has been provided herein for continuance and extension of this record to other branches

Introduction

The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of various factors on the growth and development of the human brain. The study is based on a review of the literature and a series of experiments conducted over a period of six months. The results of the study are presented in the following sections.

The first section discusses the importance of the brain in human life and the factors that influence its development. The second section describes the methods used in the study, including the selection of subjects and the design of the experiments. The third section presents the results of the experiments, showing the effects of different factors on brain growth. The fourth section discusses the implications of the findings for the understanding of brain development and the potential for future research.

The study found that the growth and development of the human brain is a complex process influenced by a variety of factors, including genetics, environment, and nutrition. The results of the experiments suggest that certain factors, such as exposure to stress and lack of proper nutrition, can have negative effects on brain development. These findings have important implications for the understanding of brain development and the potential for future research.

of the family, and particularly for individual family records which may be connected with the remote ancestors by such symbols of reference as are used in this record.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME

Prior to the conquest of England by William the Conqueror in 1066, there were no well established surnames, and little consideration was given to naming of the babies. Often nicknames were foisted upon them, either from some circumstance connected with their birth, or from some physical or other characteristic. William the Conqueror caused to be published a census in what was known as the "Doomsday Book" in which many of the Baronies and staunch Englishmen were given characteristic names—some grotesque in character. Four hundred years later the Puritans had developed another custom—that of Christian names—and the old names began to fade out. By deleting certain letters or syllables, they were shortened into simpler and more euphonious names.

The name Mount is of French Norman origin, and the spelling varied from time to time according to the period in which it was used, and meant, "a mountain, hill or an elevated place," and when applied to an individual, meant a person who lived on a hill or an elevated place, for example, "John Mont" meaning John who lived on a hill or mountain, and his descendants were afterwards called Monts. The prefix, du or de, to a name denoted some distinguishing char-

There is a growing tendency to regard the medical profession as a monopoly. It is true that the medical profession is a monopoly in the sense that it is a profession. But it is not a monopoly in the sense that it is a business. The medical profession is a profession because it is a service. It is a service that is essential to the health of the community. It is a service that is provided by a group of people who are trained in a specific field of knowledge and skill. The medical profession is a business because it is a profession. It is a profession that is organized into a body that is responsible for the regulation of the profession. acteristic, or the unusual standing, above that of others of the same name, in the community in which he lived.

In the public records of that early date the name was spelled in different ways, varying in the different areas in which it occurred, as follows:

“Monte, Richard de, a Chronicler, 1110 to 1186,”

“Mont, William du, Chancelor of Lincoln, 1213,”

“Munt, Walter, atte, (Walter at the Mount), 1273,”

“Mounte, from 1348 to 1610,”

In the year 1066 when William the Conquerer invaded England, one or more of the Mont family joined the invading horde, and remained in England, finally settling in the vicinity of Canterbury, which was on the road from France to Dover, England, over the Straits of Dover, and thence to London where many of their descendants still live. Records of births, marriages and deaths of members of the early families are recorded in the Cathedral of Canterbury and its attendant churches of St. Allbaye, St. Peters, St. Dunstons, St. Mary Magdalene and St. George the Martyr; also in the towns near Canterbury, all in the County of Kent, England. After settling permanently in England, the name was anglicized into the name Mount, as it is now universally used.

THE FIRST SETTLEMENT

The first member of the Mount family to attempt a settlement in America was Pierre du Mont, a Frenchman. The King of France ceded to him the entire control of the fur trade on the Canadian Coast on condition that he would settle the country in behalf of France. He attempted a settlement at Port Royal, Acadia, Nova Scotia, in 1605. Among the members of the Du Mont colony was Samuel Champlain, a great explorer, who, three years later, founded Quebec, when Jamestown was in the second year of its existence.

The history of the little colony attempted by Du Mont is particular and pathetic. It occupied the coast country between the fortieth and sixtieth degrees parallel, which was claimed by the English. They were compelled to rely entirely upon their own means of defense for protection against the hostile Indians. The fur trade developed into a very profitable business, and the English desiring to obtain the rich rewards of that trade so harassed the colonists that in desperation they finally abandoned the settlement to the English, and Du Mont and most of the colonists returned to France.

THE FIRST PERMANENT SETTLEMENT

The first member of the Mount family to make permanent settlement in America was the Emigrant George Mount from England. He landed in Boston, Massachusetts about the year 1660. Protestantism originated in England about the year 1600 A. D., and members of the different religious sects opposed the prevailing practices and customs of the time. Charles I was overthrown by Cromwell and immigration to America reached its heights in the years from 1620 to 1660, all seeking religious freedom. George Mount, one of the emigrants, was a Baptist, and as such, his presence was looked upon with disfavor by the Puritans of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and as a result of persecution, he went to Rhode Island and joined the Roger Williams Colony, where he was closely associated with the Bordens, a Quaker family. In 1664 the Territory of New York, including New Jersey, was seized by William Nichols from the Dutch. As Governor of New York he desired that all unoccupied land be taken up by the English, and in 1665 upon his invitation George Mount joined by Benjamin Borden went to New Jersey where they bought land from the Indians, and settled at Middletown, Monmouth County.

EXCERPTS FROM PUBLIC RECORDS

The following excerpts from the records of the "Old Town Book of Middletown" shows that George Mount entered at once actively into the civil and official life of the new settlement, (punctuation and spelling as in the original). On pages 1 and 2:

"George Mount drew lots of land recently surveyed, No. 10 (town lot) and No. 19 (out lot)."

"January 4, 1668 (Ear mark of cattle) George Mount has as his mark "left ear the top cropt offe".

"April 22, 1668, George Mount and Janathan Hulms were this day by the pluralities of votes chosen deputies to act in the General Assembly to be held at Portland Point."

"July 20, 1669, William Lawrence: Daniel Estall: George Mount: and Richard Gibbins were chosen Deputies for the present yeare according to the order: to assist the constable and overseer."

"July 26, 1669, at a Court holden in the towne

another of the deputies dissenting therefrom: desired to have it soe entered the Towne Clerke was ordered by the Court to publish this order: by fixing it upon some public station"

"December the 10th 1669 at a legall towne meeting it was put to a vote whoe shall bee the men to ases the government arrears and it was by the maior vote concluded that George Mount, Richard Sadler, Richard Richardson should bee the men to take those names that will not subscribe to the governor arrears and still doe refuse, to ases their property according to their abilities."

RELIGIOUS AFFILIATION

The Mounts were originally Baptist in religious belief and affiliation, George Mount was one of the 18 charter members, and organizer of the First Baptist Church established in the State of New Jersey, at Middletown, Monmouth County, in 1665. In an old history of the early settlements and churches of New Jersey now in the State Archives, it is related that "Richard Mount was excluded from Heightstown Baptist Church charged with nonattendance and keeping bad company, and that he later joined the Presbyterian Church."

There has been an unbroken line of Baptists in the Mount family extending from the days of Roger Williams in Rhode Island, and the organization of the First Baptist Church at Middletown, New Jersey, to the present. Also an unbroken line of Presbyterians from the early settlement in New Jersey. Others have affiliated with the Methodist, Christian, Episcopal and the Latter Day Saints (Mormon) churches.

Many members of the family have been honored by their churches through the years, by being elected ministers, deacons, elders and vestrymen, and some have been elected to positions of honor and trust in the councils of their respective denominations. In many instances their participation in the civil, official and military records will be noted, briefly, in connection with their names when reached in the genealogical records which are to follow.

In F. R. Symms's "History of Old Tennant" he quotes the following excerpts from the report of Paul Woodul Mount's extensive research into the records of the Mount family, both in Europe and America:

"In Revolutionary times the Mounts, with two or three exceptions, were ardent patriots. At least twenty members of the family served in the Continental Armies, and of these some of them gave their lives to the cause."

"The family was strongly identified with the history of Old Tennant Church. The names of many of the members being found on the baptismal, burial and communicant lists of the church, and as contributing to the erection of the edifice. In the neighboring First Presbyterian Church at Cranbury, three generations of the family were elders."

"Some of the original Mount family descendants still reside in Monmouth, Middlesex and Mercer counties, New Jersey. Some settled at an early date in Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana, and there are also prominent members of the family residing in Arkansas, Missouri, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and on the Pacific Coast, all of whom had their origin in New Jersey"

Henry D. Mount (Hezekiah, Nehemiah, Thomas, Richard, Richard, George) and Rebecca Stevens Mount of Silvertown, Oregon, had a family of 14 children—eight sons and six daughters—Wallace was Chief Justice of the State of Washington; Orville B. was a distinguished lawyer at Baker City, Oregon; Hugh S. and Guy were physicians and Clyde a dentist at Oregon City; Robert B., a painter; and Wallace C., a farmer at Silvertown, Oregon; and Beverly J., at Monlova, Washington. Of the daughters, Clara married a banker; Wenona a dentist; Minnie M. a physician; Eva L. and Clara were each married twice.

Mary Mount (Thomas, Matthias, George) born May 11, 1715, died November 24, 1800, married Joseph Cox. She was the mother of Brigadier General James Cox of the Revolutionary Army, and great-grandmother of Samuel Sullivan Cox, better known as "Sunset Cox," a distinguished lawyer, several years a member of the Lower House of Congress, and during the Grover Cleveland Administration was Minister to Turkey.

Thomas Mount went from Virginia to Mississippi, and was the father of the following children: William Sidney Mount, a banker, who became in succession treasurer and mayor of the city of New Orleans. He died in 1882; Charles Edwin Mount, a distinguished lawyer of Raymond, Mississippi, who married Mary Roberts, a descendant of Robert King of Scotland, died in 1881; Thomas Lafayette Mount, married Sophie Keener, a daughter of Bishop Keener of the Southern Methodist Church, and Joseph Mount (a bachelor) who died of Yellow Fever in 1850.

The above three representative families, show the wide distribution of members of the family, all descendants of George Mount, the original emigrant ancestor.

Many of the English family still live in the vicinity of London and Salisbury, England. William Mount of Wassing Place Manor was honored with places of leadership and trust in his community. He served as High Sheriff of the County of his residence, and as Chairman of the Newbury Branch of Magistrates, and at one time, was a member of the House of Commons, British Parliament, for the Isle of Wight.

The women of the Mount family deserve special mention. They have married into many of the leading families, past and present, under the following names: Applegate, Barkley, Bayles, Bergen, Britton, Brokaw, Compton, Combs, Covenhaven, Craig, Coward, Day, Ely, Emons, Foreman, Clark, Gordon, Hartshorne, Hendrickson, Herbert, Holmes, Hutchinson, Job, LaRue, Lawrence, Longstreet, Lee, McKee, Moore, Newell, Perrine, Reed, Rhea, Schneck, Silver, Smith, Stillwell, Stout, Trice, Thogmorton, Tilton, Treux, Vinnest, Van Cleave, Wykel, Wyghte, Voorhees, Wykoff, Wilson and Woodul, and have thus aided in the wide distribution of members of the family and their descendants.

The ramifications of the family, both male and female, have been extended so widely, that no attempt has been made to trace all branches.

The Mount family Coat of Arms from Kent, England, as mentioned in "Burke's Peerage," is described as follows:

Arms: Argent, on a mount vert, a lion rampant, azure, Ducally crowned or, between two Roses Gules, barbed and seeded ppr.

Crest: Upon a Mount vert a fox salient supported by a ragged staff erect, sable.

Motto: Prudenter et Constanter.

EXPLANATION OF SYMBOLS AND COLORINGS

Argent, white or silver, signifies peace and security.

Vert, or green, signifies hope, joy and sometimes loyalty in love.

Gules, or red, denotes military fortitude and magnanimity. It is also the "Martyr's Colour."

Or, yellow or gold, denotes generosity and elevation of mind.

The Mount, in heraldry, means the representation of a Mound or Elevation covered with grass, occupying the bottom or base of the shield.

The Lion, has always held high place in heraldry as the emblem of deathless courage. Guillim speaking of the lion says "It is a lively image of a good soldier who must be valient of courage, strong of body and politic in Council and a foe to fear. It is the emblem of St. Mark."

The Fox, in heraldry, denotes one who will use all that he may possess of sagacity, wit or wisdom in his own defense.

Mount Genealogy

1660-1953

SECTION I

GEORGE MOUNT, the original emigrant ancestor, was born in England about 1635. He was one of a large number of Englishmen who came to America during the years 1620 to 1660 seeking freedom and religious liberty. He landed at Boston, Massachusetts, about the year 1660. Being a Baptist in religious belief and practice, his presence was not looked upon with favor by the Puritans of Massachusetts Bay Colony, and to avoid the consequent persecution for his religious beliefs, he went to Rhode Island and joined the Roger Williams Colony. There he met and married Katherine ——— who, it is believed was a member of, or closely related to the Borden family.

When Richard Nichols, then Governor of New York, opened up for settlement, the territory of New Jersey, which had been seized from the Dutch, he was joined by Benjamin Borden, and they bought land from the Indians at Middletown, Monmouth County, New Jersey for permanent settlement. He at once entered into the civic, religious and political life of the community. He was referred to as a blacksmith, which at that time, in England, meant a worker in metals—iron, brass and silver—and from such metals fashioned ornamental articles and monuments of lasting beauty, as well as tools for domestic use. He was organizer and one of the charter members of the first Baptist Church organized in the State of New Jersey at Middletown, Monmouth County in 1665, and a member of the first General Assembly held at Portland Point in 1668.

He had three children as follows:

1. Katherine, born about 1663 or 1664 in Rhode Island.
2. Richard (See further Section II).
3. Matthias (See further Section III).

—New Jersey Archives,
Stillwell's Miscellanies.

SECTION II

RICHARD MOUNT (I-2), son of George and Katherine Mount, was born 1665 in New Jersey. He was a man of limited education and signed all legal instruments by mark. He resided first at Middletown where his cattle mark was registered August 8, 1694. He was owner of several tracts of land at Middletown, totaling 200 acres which he sold to Eden Burrows March 13, 1710, and moved to Cranbury, New Jersey. He was listed on Muster Rolls as a Lieutenant. In 1687 he was married to Rebecca Wall of Freehold.

They had six children as follows:

1. Richard, born prior to 1691, died 1777. He was married three times—first to Rebecca ———; second to Rachel Cox, and third to Eliza B. Forman, a widow, who was born 1712, died March 16, 1791.
2. Sarah, born prior to 1691, died 1769.
3. John, born prior to 1691, died March 29, 1772. He married Mary Mount, his cousin, daughter of Matthias Mount (I-3). She was born 1694, died 1715.
4. Ann, born prior to 1693, married Joseph Britton April 5, 1714.
5. George, born prior to 1695, and
6. Humphrey, born prior to 1699.

—New Jersey Archives,
Stillwell's Miscellanies.

SECTION III

MATTHIAS MOUNT (I-3), son of George and Katherine Mount, was born about 1668 in New Jersey, and died 1695. He resided in Middletown, New Jersey, and married Mary Wall, who was born 1663 and died 1700.

They had three children as follows:

1. Matthias (See further Section IV).
2. Mary, born 1694 and died 1745, married John, a cousin, son of Richard (II-3).
3. Thomas who resided at Shrewsbury, New Jersey, had four children as follows:
 - (1) Samuel who moved to New York and married Margaret Dobbs, and was the ancestor of the Mounts of New York City, known as the Trinity Church line.
 - (2) Mary, born May 31, 1715, died November 24, 1800. She married Joseph Cox and was the mother of Brigadier General James Cox of the Revolutionary Army, and the great-grandmother of Samuel Sullivan Cox (better known as "Sunset Cox") who was a member of Congress from New York, and during the Administration of Grover Cleveland was Minister to Turkey.
 - (3) James, the father of Patience who married Robert Gordon Dec. 18, 1742.
 - (4) John, the father of John Mount, Jr., and Timothy.

—New Jersey Archives,
Stillwell's Miscellanies.

SECTION IV

MATTHIAS MOUNT (III-1), son of Matthias and Mary Wall Mount. Little is known of him. In the will of George Mount, his grandfather, probated August 31, 1705, he named as beneficiaries Katherine his wife, Katherine a daughter, and grandsons Matthias and Thomas, sons of his deceased son Matthias. Three of his sons were prominently identified with the Presbyterian churches at Tennant and Cranbury. He was buried in the Cranbury Church Cemetery. He married Ann Nesbit, daughter of Joseph Nesbit.

They had four children, viz.:

1. Margaret, who was married three times—first to James Barbour; second to Mathew Rue, and third to James Dey.
2. Matthias (See further Section V).
3. Humphrey, born about 1708, and died after 1752. He had four children as follows:
 - (1) Britton baptised in Tennant Church June 2, 1731.
 - (2) Dorcas, baptised in Tennant Church, May 5, 1734.
 - (3) Mary, baptised in Tennant Church June 7, 1736.
 - (4) William, baptised in Tennant Church May 14, 1739.
4. Nesbit (See further Section XV).

—Symms's History of Old Tennant.

SECTION V

MATTHIAS MOUNT (IV-2), son of Matthias and Ann Nesbit Mount, was born 1706 in New Jersey and died April 7, 1791. He resided at Cranbury where he was an Elder in the Presbyterian Church. In 1745 he moved to Freehold, Middlesex County, and about 1768 moved to Fairfax County, Virginia, and in 1774 was appointed by the court a member of a commission to survey routes for public roads in the county. The following is a record of his military services, obtained from the Adjutant's office in Washington, D. C.:

"The record on file in this office shows that Matthias Mount served in the Revolution as a private in Captain Mitchell's Company, 12th Virginia Regiment,—also designated as 4th, 8th, and 12th Virginia.—the 8th Regiment commanded by Colonel James Wood. He enlisted for three years on December 25, 1776, and was transferred to Captain Thomas Boyer's Company about December, 1777, and again transferred about June 1778 to Major Jonathan Clerk's Company, and in 1779 to a company designated at various times as Captain Robert Gambel's and Captain Presley Neville's Company the same regiment. Captain Wood's Company was under Lieutenant Colonel Flemming of the Virginia Colonial Troops,—The Lieutenant's Company being a part of the same regiment. His name last appears on the company pay roll for November 1779."

The following quotation is taken from Stillwell's Historical and Genealogical Miscellany:

"Matthias Mount, son of Matthias and Ann Nesbit

Mount, was born 1706 and died 1791. He married Annie Disbrow who was born 1714, and died June 23, 1792. They are buried in Cranbury Yard, between Humphrey and Matthias Mount. He was a Ruling Elder in the First Presbyterian Church at Cranbury for nearly fifty years. In 1745 he was residing at Freehold, New Jersey. He was a Revolutionary soldier when over 70 years of age. Tradition says that he was assigned as a teamster much to his chagrin."

Being a teamster probably accounts for his frequent transfers, as all war materials and supplies were moved by wagon teams. His wife, Annie Disbrow, was a member of a well-known Colonial family. The old Disbrow homestead located at Memeroneck, New York, has long since gone to decay, but the old rock chimney, with its huge fireplace, covered with ivy, still stands as a monument to the chivalry and a civilization of the past, the like of which will probably never be seen again. The old homestead was of literary and historic interest, reference to which is made in Cooper's novel "The Spy." It was in the large cupboard which stood near the fireplace that Harvey Birch, the interesting character in the great American novel, hid himself. Matthias and his wife Annie are buried in the cemetery at Cranbury, New Jersey.

They had six children as follows:

1. Thomas (See further Section VI).
2. Matthias (See further Section XX).
3. Richard, born May 19, 1741, died July 21, 1829. The Pension Records in the National Archives, Washington, D. C., records his military services as follows: "He enlisted May 31, 1776, served as a private with the North Carolina Troops under Captains Archibald, Lytle, White, McRea, Tilghman and Dixon, Colonels Leach and Clark, and was in the battles of Brandywine, Germantown, and Monmouth. After the war he returned to New Jersey and New York, and married Rachel Reton, in the Dutch Reformed Church of New York City. SECTION XXXIX

Educated in the public schools of Gibson County and Union University, Jackson, Tennessee, from which institution he received the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1891. After graduation he engaged in teaching for a number of years—four years principal of the public schools of the city of Dyer, Tennessee. He left the profession of teaching and accepted a position as secretary and treasurer of the Dyer Fruit Box Manufacturing Co. He resigned that position and moved to Corpus Christi, Texas, in 1909 to take a position as manager of the Corpus Christi Steamship Co. He served one year as Deputy Clerk of the County Court of Nueces County, and in 1913 was appointed Deputy Clerk of the United States District Court, Southern District of Texas, in charge of the Corpus Christi Division, and in 1915 appointed United States Commissioner for the same court, holding the dual position until June 30, 1950, when he voluntarily retired from office, having been in government service continuously for 37 years. Judge James V. Allred in making the announcement in open court from the Federal Bench spoke as follows:

“It was with great regret that I learned of Judge Mount’s decision to retire. He has been of the greatest assistance to every judge with whom he has served. We are sorry that the Judge decided to retire—he could have stayed at the post indefinitely, but we understand his desire to rest after 37 years of service. Judge (T. M.) Kennerly, Judge (Allen B.) Hannay, and Judge (Ben) Connally and myself join in expressing our appreciation for his long and able services."

Resolutions of the Nueces County Bar Association:

"The Committee appointed by you to prepare and present to the Association resolutions expressing the sentiment of the members of this Association in respect to the retirement of Mr. J. A. Mount, Deputy Clerk and Commissioner of the Corpus Christi Division of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of Texas, respectfully submit the following:

WHEREAS, the members of this Association have learned with great regret that Mr. Mount has decided to retire from office June 30th, 1950, after a continuous service of thirty-seven years as clerk, and thirty-five years as Commissioner, having served in these capacities under every judge of this court since the creation of the district, with distinction, ability and efficiency. Always courteous, kind, considerate and helpful to those having business with his office, he was never too busy or too occupied to take the time and trouble to give to all of us, old or young, who approached him, the benefit of his familiarity and experience with the rules of practice and procedure of the district and appellate courts. We appreciate that he has earned the right to retire and rest, but we regret the loss of his services to the Court and to the members of this bar and we shall miss him. And, whenever we have occasion hereafter to call the Clerk's Office by telephone we shall miss that kind and familiar voice we have heard so often saying "Clerk's Office." We wish him many years of rest and relaxation in his retirement and everything that is good for him.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that these resolutions be approved and ordered spread upon the Minutes of this Association, that a properly certified copy be furnished to the District Court with the request that it be filed in the records of the Court; that a properly certified copy be presented to Mr. Mount, and that a properly certified copy be furnished to the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

Respectfully submitted,

GORDON BOONE, Chairman,

EDWARD R. KLEBERG,
